Relevant, Time Based) methodology as a guide when setting your goals. Don't forget to involve your Client Partner/Project Lead in this stage, if needed.

Performance Objective: These goals are relevant to employees' job families, their job profile and are significant for the company's overall success. Some of these goals can be cascaded by managers or the organization, in advance. All employees must set 5 to 6 performance goals, according to their direct managers.

Development Objective: These goals are linked to skills, competencies and behaviors that support performance and personal development of employees. Setting personal goals involves assessing own competencies and identifying areas in which everyone can improve. Setting personal development goals is not mandatory, but optional. However, we highly encourage all to set at least 1 personal development goal.

Goal Description: In this field there must be at least 1 KPI (Key Performance Indicator) related to the goal, in order to measure it against a set target.
